

Happy Summer!

Simone Agha

To all Slugs and Honorary Slugs: I hope your summer is going well and that you enjoy this special estival edition of the Weekly Awesome from bathrooms on 4E and beyond.

The Dangerously Comfortable and the Best 4th of July Ever

YinMonMon Aung

The day started out with a group of Slugs cooking breakfast together. The menu included traditional breakfast foods such as bacon, toast, pancakes and fruit. After stuffing ourselves with delicious food, we decided to scout a proper place to camp out for the 4th of July fireworks and someone suggested bringing the Dangerously Comfortable down to Memorial Drive. While the girls were guarding the available spot on the Memorial Drive sidewalk with all their lives, the guys went upstairs and brought down the famous Dangerously Comfortable and an unknown futon. The highlight of the day was filling out a silly Sloany survey for free ice creams. We passed the time playing cards, eating Pallo chicken and just lounging on the couches while everyone else around us was envying our couches. Overall, old Slugs, young Slugs, crufty Slugs and Slug affiliates all enjoyed the best view of the fireworks from the best seats.

Note Ben's contemplative expression.

Nonsense Corner

NonsenseComm

Mr. Pacco placed the silver bird on the Hemmington press, proceeding to allocate the waxing croissant to the myriad flowers. At  $t = \text{taufish}$ , the clocktower struck a chord, and the illicit lithium lilies began to dance. "Pure life!" Mr. Pacco exclaimed, typing away madly on his Boysenberry. It was absolutely necessary to record his discovery that Truth and Beauty overcomes Grim and Evil even in the most haphazard of conditions. This, he thought, would surely win him the Saltomeyer Award!

Lightning-struck Tree

Fangfei Shen

I saw a lightning-struck tree this summer in the not lightning capital of the world (i.e. not Florida (i.e. Ithaca, NY)). I didn't get to see the actual lightning strike, but seeing the aftermath was still really awesome. The heat from the lightning had caused the sap inside the tree to explode, so the tree was splintered pretty seriously, and tree debris was strewn all over the place.

Lightning-struck tree.

Book Review

John Escrow

The Fourth East Cookbook, edited by W. R. Chan, contains all of the recipes for the delicacies that have been prepared and served on the hall. This work is yet another masterpiece from the established editor who once brought us Telephony and You, Optimizing Optical Characterizations on a Manifold and Wuthering Heights, not Withering Heights. Mr. Chan again impresses critics in this spellbinding collection, elaborately laid out on the finest parchment that has been aged in a world-grade kiln and charred using teak-mahogany charcoal. Don't book return this one! I consider this a recommended read and a necessity of any Slug's kitchen and give this book a rating of 3-Thumbs good!

Police Report

Walker Chan

Tucker Chan reported larceny of the ThirdEasterator at 11:50pm last night. Eight suspects broke into his room while he was performing a calculation by himself and restrained Mr. Chan. The suspects then took the ThirdEasterator by force. Mr. Chan is cooperating with the authorities and has identified three of the suspects as members of Third East. Their identities have not been released. The suspects still remain at large.